What the Democrats in Congress Will Do.

The prospect is that the Democratic National Convention of this year, yielding to what it will regard as the inevitable result of last fall's elections, will decide not to declare for the free coinage of silver. Indeed the simple fact that Mr. CLEVELAND, an avowed opponent of free coinage, is a prominent aspirant to the office of President of the United States and expects to be nominated for that office, is proof positive that either free comage or the opponents of free comage must be ordered to the rear for the present. Many of the Democratic leaders in Washington-not all, by any means-seem hold that it will be sound icy for the Democratic National Convention so to frame its platform as to please the Democrats of the New ad States and those of New York and New Jersey. In other words the Democrats of those States, being many of them hostile to free coinage, the Demo-crats of all the other States in the Union must yield to these dissentients on pain of the election of a Republican President committed to the policy of opposing that measure. In November last we reached nclusion that this was the fate in store for the Democratic party, and for the reason given by the New York Tribune because the silver men, especially those in the South, will support any candidate for President the National Convention may nominate, whereas the gold men will support no candidate holding views antagonistic to theirs. The South is still tied hand and foot. She has no choice in the matter. Negro rule, or a repetition of the evils of reconstruction times, constantly shakes its finger at her and tells her to beware!

We thus assume -what may turn out not to be true-that Congress will not legislate satisfactorily on the silver question during the current session of that body. That question is the only one which now threatideal pieces the Lost Pleiad is perhaps the ens the harmony of the Democratic party, and the Republicans are not at all likely to do anything that will remove that question out of our way. So it may be safely was an invalid, but he never lost his inpredicted that even if the two houses of terest in his art, and his villa at Rome was Congress send a silver bill to the Presi- ever open to American visitors, and to all dent for his approval, he will veto it. Our zeal as a bimetallist has suffered no abatement. We feel that we yield to circumstances which we cannot control when we reluctantly consent to let the Mugwumps dictate the financial policy of the Democratic party; and we shall omit no suita-ble opportunity for setting forth the ate as the Hall amendment, and that of free coinage. The South, however, has the first claim upon us.

So much for one view of the probable change. And that paper seems to think near future. There is another view of it that Mr. Barckinging played off a practitaken by a number of the Democratic cal joke upon the Democrats when he inmembers of both houses of Congress. For duced them and their newspaper organs these gentlemen Mr. Thaman, of South | to endorse his stolen resolution Carolina, speaks when he "talks out in meeting" as follows. We quote the Washwithers are unwrung." From the beginington correspondent of the Baltimore Sua, a monometallist paper:

"The majority in the House have determined to pass a tariff bill and also a free silver bill, and ie New England Mugwumps in the land can-revent it. We have the votes,' said Mr. ian, 'and our people sent us here to pass those two bills. We propose to do our duty whether it suits certain people or not. If the resident wants to veto the free silver bill let tresient wants the will be the last President who will go to the White House as an opponent of free silver.' Many of Mr. Tillman's associates echo the same sentimetric, and it remains to be seen how the managers of the Democratic party are

It would seem, therefore, that there-it is only a possibility—is a possibility that the Democrats in the two houses of Congress may during the present session commit themselves to the policy of free coinage. We will keep our readers fully posted in regard to this important ques-

Repeal It. The New York Tribone says that the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Counselman case calls for the immediate amendment of the inter-state commerce act. We have heretofore expressed the opinion that that decision was a step in the right direction, and we e glad to find that our New York contemporary is of the same opinion. We commend that decision to our law-makers as pointing out where a breaker lies. as pointing out where a creater has But is there any necessity for such an amendment? Does not the decision operate to repeal the unconstitutional clause? Perhaps the Tribune desires to have the act amended so as to provide some constitutional method of compell-ing witnesses to criminate themselves. But this is an impossibility. Congress tried in framing the interstate commerce act to avoid the operation of the fifth amendment, but failed. The Supreme Court of the United States spoke of that attempt as follows : "We are clearly of opinion that no statute which leaves the party or witness subject to prosecution after he answers the criminating question put to him can have the effect of supplanting the privilege conferred by the Constitution of the United States. Section 860 of the Revised Statutes does not supply a complete protection from all the perils against which the constitutional provision was designed to guard, and is not a full substitute for that prohibition. In riew of the constitutional provision, a statutory enactment to be valid must afford absolute immunity against future prosecution for the of-"We are clearly of opinion that no statute

How does the Tribune propose to evade that plain judicial opinion? We say repeal the act and live up to the organic law of

THE WOMAN WILL BE HANGED.

Case of Towler's Lynchers Continued-Pleased with the Olcott Settlement.

(Special telegram to the Dispatch.)

Danville, Va., January 15.—City-Sergeant P. H. Boisseau received a telegram to-day from Governor McKinney stating that he would not interfere in the case of Margaret Lashley, who is condemned to be hanged, and she and her paramour, Jim Lyles, will be swung into eternity on Friday next. This awful news was communicated to the woman to-day, and she received it with a sigh of despair.

Constable T. N. Williams, of the Bannister section, was here to-day and gave further particulars of the lynching of George Towler. He says that the negro had always behaved himself until his attempted crime on Sunday night, and was regarded as a good boy.

The Mitchell boys and their friend Dock Haymore, who were arrested upon the serious charge of having lynched Towler, were arraigned yesterday before Justice Cowherd, at Eannister, but some of the witnesses were not present and the case was continued until next Tuesday. It was mentioned in these dispatches yesterday that at a mass-meeting of the citizens of Danville, a resolution which was offered endersing the Olcott settlement of the State debt was tabled. It should have been explained that some of the citizens present preferred not to express their sentiments until they had seen a detailed report of the State Commission. That report was read to-day and everybody is pleased with it. Mr. William E. Boisseau, commissioner of revenue, who made a speech at yesterday's meeting in opposition to the resolution, after reading the report to-day expressed himself as being perfectly satisfied that the Olcott proposition is far more advantageous to the State than the Riddleberger act, and as being cordially in favor of a settlement upon that basis. Mr. Boisseau has made a study of this question and is perhaps the best informed man in the city on matters of State finances. THE LATE REPRESENTATIVE LEE.

On motion of Mr. Meredith, of Virginia.
February 5th was set aside for the delivery of eulogies upon the late Representative Lee, of Virginia.
The House then resumed consideration of unfinished business, that being a motion to reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered on the subsidy and economy resolutions offered by Mr. Holman. The New York Tribune declares that Mr. BRECKINBIDGE'S resolution is identical with the proposition submitted by Secretary Blaine on June 19, 1830, to Congress the phraseology has been reproduced word for word absolutely without

Mr. Holman.

Mr. Holman withdrew the motion. He had, he said, come to the conclusion that the second resolution was broad enough to cover any and all proper legal appropriations. It would include all such legislation as private pension bills and the like.

THE QUESTION DIVIDED. Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, inquired whether a separate vote could be had on each resolution, and, on receiving an affirmative reply, demanded a division of the question. This demand after consultation with Mr. Dingley, of Maine, he withdrew; but it was immediately repeated by Mr. Tracey, of New York. So the question was taken on the first resolution, which reads as follows:

powers-to the President of the United ntsolution no. 1 adopted.

"Resolved. That in the judgment of this House the granting of subsidies or bounties by Congress in money, public lands, or bonds, or by endorsement or by pledge of the public credit, to promote special private industries or enterprises of corporations, independent of the question of the constitutional power of Congress to make such grants, is unjust and impolitic and in manifest conflict with the spirit of our republican institutions, as it directly tends to create and foster the wealth of favored classes at the expense of the whole people who bear the burdens of government, and manifestly furnishes undue facilities for the enlargement of great private estates—a policy which a government of the people cannot justly or safely encourage by any form of favoritism in legislation. It was adopted—yeas, 229; nays, 40.

The question was then taken on the second resolution (Mr. Lynen, of Wisconsin, making a vam effort to present a substitute). The resolution is as follows:

RESOLUTION NO. 2-AGREED TO. "Resolved, In view of the present condition of the Treasury and because efficient and Lonest government can only be assured by the frugal expenditure of the public money, while unnecessary and lavish expenditure under any and all conditions leads inevitably to venal and corrupt methods in public affairs; that no money ought to be appropriated by Congress from the public Treasury except such as is manifestly necessary to carry on the several departments frugally, efficiently, and honestly administered.

The resolution was agreed to—yeas, 164;
nays, 33.

TOUCHING COMMITTEE CLEEKS.

The House then took up for consideration the report of the Committee on Accounts, assigning clerks to the various committees of the House, and a discussion ensued as to whether there was not extravagance in these assignments.

After a long debate the minority substitute providing for twenty-four clerks was defeated—yeas, $4; nays, 164, and the majority report, which provides for thirty-seven clerks, was agreed to.

Until the age of twenty-three he was engaged in mercantile pursuits in Ann Arbor, Mich., and in New York city. He then went to Italy and studied with Lorenzo Bartolini at Rome from 1848 to 1850. On his return he opened a studio in New York, where he remained until 1855. In that year he returned to Italy, where he has resided since that time. Among his earlier works are "Ruth," an ideal bust (1851; Nydia (1856); "Boy Skating." "Isaac," full length, and the status of John Adams in Mt. Auburn cemetery (1857). One of his best known works, the basicles on the doors of the Capitol at Washington, representing scenes in the life of Columbus, was designed in 1858 and cast in bronze at Munich. In 1861 he completed the Washington monument here at Hichmond, which had been left unfinished by Thomas Crawford, adding the statues of Marshall, Mason, and Nelson, for which Crawford had made no design, as well as some allegorical figures. His other works include "Angel of the Resurrection," on the monument of Colonel Samuel Colt. Hartford, Conn., (1861-82); "Isaac," an ideal bust (1855); memorial monuments for Cincinnati (1803-64); "Genius of Connecticut," on the Capitolat Hartford (1877), and an equestrian group of Indians in bronze (1881). PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

A correspondent writing some years thus describes Mr. Rogers's appearance: "In height Mr. Rogers is five leet, eight and a half inches; his eyes are gray, and indicate quickness, penetrative decision; his mouth is farthest removed from that type which is soured about the ends; his hair, somewhat gray, is of vicorous growth; his forenead is broad, high, and well built out over the eves; the nose is of good size and straight; the whole head large, and a beard worn after the Da Vince type; the shoulders broad, the chest immense. He weight $20 pounds. If he ever has been criticised he has simply laughed and grown fat.

His whole appearance indicates most temperate and simple habits. He works, as a rule, all the time—at ideal work when he can and at the more mechanical parts of his vocation when he must.

He works again the traditional artistic cap and an outer garment of gray woolen cloth, cut loose and half-flowing. His manner is genlai without affectation, free from enobbery and unapoiled by lionizing. His step is light and quick."
